From the LA Times, 8 Sep 19:

Vaidehi Williams

On Earth Day and at the Santa Cruz County Fair, Vaidehi Williams — who went by “Vai” — was a familiar sight, wearing a bright blue water droplet costume as she taught the public about water conservation and recycling. Colleagues at the Soquel Creek Water District in Santa Cruz recalled Williams, 41, as joyful and enthusiastic.

“May we always remember her infectious smile, kind heart, vast knowledge, and adventurous spirit,” employee Melanie Mow Schumacher said. “Vai will forever be our ‘Water Princess.’”

In a fundraiser for Williams’ husband and two children, friends wrote that she had “touched so many people from so many walks of life. Anyone who has spent just a little time with her has been enchanted by her energy and felt the instant warmth of her friendship.”

— LAURA J. NELSON

Note: This person is known as both Campbell and Williams.
